SpaceX launch - Mrs F Patel

You may have heard about NASA releasing a rocket a couple of days ago but this was cancelled due to the weather. As it had been raining there was the chance that the launch could trigger lightning due to the excessive amount of electricity in the atmosphere. These were some rules they accumulated over the years from experience. SpaceX has never taken people to space before but they are hoping that this can reduce the cost of transportation with the long-term goal of creating a colony on Mars.

Robert L.Behnken and Douglas G. Hurley are the 2 astronauts that were selected by NASA in 2000 to travel in SpaceX. Both these men would have been staying at the space station for 2 weeks. Prior to this the NASA astronauts had gone into quarantine 2 weeks before they were expected to fly out and had been tested for COVID 19 on more than one occasion.

NASA has urged spectators to stay away from the Kennedy Space centre to limit the spread but they expected there to be a huge crowd. The takeoff took place on Saturday 30th May at 3:22pm. If you would like to witness this amazing event again you can watch it on the NASA website or the NASA channel.

Story starter!

Their speed was such that they appeared a blur to the little girl watching them. She sat on a stone wall, knees pulled up to her chest, bracing herself slightly against the strong breeze.

The herd of wild horses moved as one: a frothing, raging river cascading across the countryside. They reminded her of a waterfall she had visited with her parents last summer. The foam that formed on top of the surging water as it bubbled away in the plunge pool like a witch's evil potion was the same colour as their long, flowing manes.

The horses seemed to be startled by something. What were they running from? Or was it perhaps that they felt a sense of great urgency to reach a certain destination?

The girl sat and pondered at the question...

History – Ms March

Historical Association
The voice for history

The Historical Association Historical Fiction Prize

'Are you up for the challenge?' If you accept the challenge, then follow the instructions on the leaflet and you may just win a cash prize of £25 from the Historical Association if you are a winner. Your teachers will be sending an email to your class this week if you are interested in giving it a go with lots of advice, guidance and support on how to write a great historical story. Once you have written your story then simply send the story along with the entry form to enquiries@history.org.uk before the deadline of 26th June 2020 . A parent/ carer will need to fill the entry form in and sign it.

Use a specific event, period or individual as a focus. It is often helpful if it is linked to a topic or period that the class are studying. The examples used, however, show that it is not always essential to use popular teaching topics. Be careful to ensure that the topic is age appropriate. A visit such as to a museum or an historic building can help create ideas.

The Historical Association Historical Fiction Prize and the Joan Blyth Memorial Prize

Write Your Own Historical Fiction Competition 2020 – Bigger and Better than Ever Before!

One of the key attributes of historical fiction is that it has a convincing setting in a past time and place. Students can set their stories in ANY period or place in the past, so the story can fit in with and extend any historical topic you may be studying. Winning students will each receive a cash prize of £25 and an engraved Bath Aqua Blue glass paperweight. Schools will receive a year's FREE subscription to the HA.

Humour is often useful, as is adding dilemmas, different viewpoints or tension. It can all help add colour.
